FIRST CLASS MAIL

Loyola Summer School expanded: 40 new courses

The new Loyola Summer School Calendar lists a total of 157 full and 55 half courses; forty courses are first-time offerings. There are eight special programmes including summer institutes in Biology, Canadian Studies, Drama, French, Mathematics, Elementary Science and Theology.

Several institutes are designed for teachers and aimed at increasing their up-to-date knowledge in specialist fields. Others, such as Canadian Studies, Drama, and French are open to any student interested in the area.

Individual new courses are offered in Art, Biology, Bio-Physical Education, Chemistry, Classics, English, French, Geography, German, Italian, Spanish and Psychology. In addition there are several new courses in Health Education, History and Theology.

The new calendar is available at the Evening Division offices in the Hackett Building. Registration this year will be Tuesday, May 29 through Thursday, May 31. Evening classes begin Monday, June 4 and day classes, Tuesday, July 3. Summer school will end Friday, August 10.

All students who attended either of the last two Loyola Evening Division sessions will have their registration simplified this year. In the near future they will receive by mail a registration card with all personal details preprinted. Course numbers will be added at registration. In the past students have had to wait until registration to obtain this card.

Steppingstones later this month

Baz Holland, '59, Chairman of Steppingstones '73, announced this week that the program will take place during the afternoon of Tuesday, March 22, at Loyola High School. Through the efforts of Baz and Rev. Gerry Mathieu, S.J., '56, assisted by Linda Sheshko, '68, Gerry Gallagher, '44, and Dick Riendeau, '54, the format will consist of a talk at 1:30 P.M. followed by a question period and another presentation at 2:30 P.M. again followed by a question period. This format, featuring various topics, will be carried out in several classrooms, thus students will have an opportunity to attend two lectures.

One of the innovations introduced last year will be retained for the March 22 project—students will act as moderators. They will introduce guest speakers, chair the presentation, and oversee the question period. Because of the well known successes in past performances by Loyola High School students in acting, debating, public speaking, etc., the organizers were in full agreement with the student-moderator plan.

Steppingstones '73 is being held at Loyola High School with the blessing and full cooperation of Rev. Ken Casey, S.J., '43, and his staff. The Alumni Association is indebted to Father Casey for the opportunity to meet with high school students. The discussion periods and give and take between the guests and students, should prove interesting and informative.

Some of the speakers, who will be appearing, are William Shore, '41, Teaching; Robert Riendeau, Research and Computer Programming; Ronald Montcalm, '62, Law; and Brian Casey, '60, Accounting.

New student leaders elected

Marc Tigh and Don Boisvert were voted in as Loyola Students' Association co-presidents for the '73-74 term of office late February. They will take over from the current co-presidents Peter Fedele and Barry Sheehy next month. One of the co-presidents will be appointed to the Alumni Association Board.

Tigh, a second year University Arts student, and Boisvert, first year University Arts, won the election on a platform that dealt with educational reform, communications, campus services, the new University and student government.

Only two other teams made a bid for the office: Danny Antonecchia and Ted Bridge, and John McCoy and Jon Wolf. Tigh/Boisvert gained 805 votes, Antonecchia/Bridge 274, and McCoy/Wolf 161.

Tigh and Boisvert have considerable experience in student government at Loyola. Tigh has been L.S.A. communications vice-president, served on the L.S.A. Board of Directors and several Loyola committees. Boisvert has been both internal and external L.S.A. vice-president, a member of the Senate, several student associations and Loyola committees, and last year was director of the Loyola Youth Hostel.

Chris Crawford receives top fellowship

Chris Crawford, who graduated from Loyola last year with an honours degree in political science, has been awarded an I.O.D.E. overseas fellowship for post-graduate study in the United Kingdom.

The renewable fellowship for $5,000.00 is one of ten I.O.D.E. fellowships awarded across Canada.

Chris is currently enrolled in the M.A. program in political science at Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario.

WARRIORS' CLUB

Alumni and friends continue to join "The Warriors' Club".

The most important period for the "Club" will commence on May 1 when activities begin in the Athletic Complex. If members show an interest in and partake of the physical fitness program offered it will augur well for the future. The Loyola Athletic Staff has promised full cooperation.

There have been numerous requests to the Alumni Office, some verbal, some written, concerning the type of person who is a member. Prospective members are anxious to find out something about the ages, backgrounds (athletic and otherwise), interests, etc. of the current group.

It is not possible to provide a comprehensive breakdown in a newsletter, consequently the Alumni Office thought it would be beneficial if a list of current members was published. Most alumni will recognize some or most of the names. If not the graduation year will provide some indication of the age of the person.

Bud Patton, '53, President of "The Warriors' Club" and his chief lieutenant Frank McNally Jr., '68, are hopeful that many of the female graduates and their friends (male and female) will take advantage of the opportunities being offered. Remember the fee is only $10.00. By May 1, the physical fitness program will be underway, right now all members can benefit from discounts at various sporting goods stores.

Loyola Phys. Ed. Institute takes students to Russia and Europe

Courses offering study in Sweden, Finland, Germany, and the U.S.S.R. are among the new listings in Loyola's Summer School Calendar.

The European study trips are part of Loyola's Institute of Comparative Physical Education, being offered for the first time this year. Three courses, as yet subject to final confirmation, will take students across the Atlantic for approximately three weeks for on-the-spot study.

Classes will be held at Boson Sports College, Stockholm, the University of Jyväskylä, Finland, Institute of Physical Education, Munich, and the University of Moscow. Students will be totally immersed in the country's culture and physical education systems analysed.

Open to undergraduate physical education students with advanced standing, graduate school students, and phys-ed teachers, the course will include lectures by prominent physical education professors, seminars and laboratory periods in the countries visited.

Loyola's Director of Physical Education, Ed Enos, planned the courses following a study trip last summer which took him to each of the universities participating.

He sees the program as a way of helping enhance the quality of physical education in Canada. "I feel that students will not only be able to learn much from the on-site study, but they will also be able to re-examine what is being done here," he says.

In each country students will study every aspect of physical education, from historical foundations through new training and coaching techniques, the latest concepts in sports buildings and current research. The tours, says Dr. Enos, create an optimum learning environment for such study.

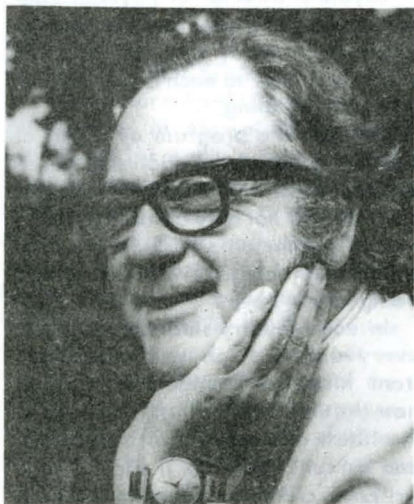

British film expert hosts new film series

By Fr. Marc Gervais, S.J.

Following its two earlier segments (The Musical and the Indian Cinema, Satyajit Ray) the Loyola Film Series this month continues its 1972-73 season with a selection of outstanding French films of the 1960's; films of the group of directors who were the dominant figures in a movement known as La Nouvelle Vague.

The Series, which is a public extension of the regular Communication Arts Course, Exploration in the Cinema, has been conducted this year by noted visiting lecturers: London's John Kobal, for The Musical, and Calcutta's Gaston Roberge, for Satyajit Ray. La Nouvelle Vague has as its lecturer the distinguished British film scholar, Roger Manvell.

Dr. Manvell ranks as one of the giants in world film research. From the early 40's until now he has been at the very forefront of English writers on film. Through a long series of books, numberless film lecturers, attendance at all the major international film festivals as critic or jury member, and his active role in so many British film associations, his contribution to the creation of a serious interest in film has been enormous.

The French cinema has long been one of Roger Manvell's favorites. Like most Londoners, he shares in the paradox of being particularly sensitive to what is going on in French artistic circles. That is one of the reasons why he gladly accepted to spend five weeks at Loyola, introducing La Nouvelle Vague, lecturing on it, and leading in discussions. His insights into a phenomenon he feels great empathy with, balanced by his extended knowledge of world film history, should prove of great value to the Loyola (and larger Montreal) community.

The Nouvelle Vague series is being screened Wednesday nights in the F. C. Smith Auditorium at 7:00 and 9:15 p.m. Admission is 99c.

Health Minister Lalonde to speak at Loyola

Health Minister Marc Lalonde will be the keynote speaker at a conference to be held at Loyola on Saturday, March 31. Sponsored by the Notre Dame de Grace Community Council, the conference will investigate the quality of life in N.D.G. and how it can be improved.

Mr. Lalonde's address will highlight a day of workshops in the Bryan Building that will see exchanges of information and ideas on community organizations and problems. More than 200 organizations have been invited to participate.

A major aim of the conference will be to establish a clearer understanding of the function and role of service organizations within the community and the needs of the people they serve.

Support for the conference has already been gained from Solicitor General Warren Allmand, '53, N.D.G. Liberal M.P., City of Montreal Councilor John Parker, and the Association of Leisure Time Services of Quebec, Inc., which is supplying technical and professional staff services.

A large number of participants will be from Notre-Dame de Grace and the community, with its population of 100,000, will be used as a focus point for the conference.

Toronto alumni: getting it all together

Loyola Alumni and Alumnae residing in Ontario, especially the Toronto-Hamilton area, have always been most responsive to Loyola events held in their part of Canada. Combined athletic-social activities or strict social affairs have been well attended.

Way back in the old days Walter Elliott, '31, Harold Quinn, '29, Clem Bucher, '33 and others saw to it that friendships formed at Loyola would continue by way of luncheons, meetings, socials and by attending athletic contests featuring Loyola football and hockey teams. The group was in close touch with Jesuits stationed in Guelph and Toronto. They performed good deeds for the College and for ex-classmates.

In 1966 the Toronto Chapter really came into its own. While Harold Quinn and Clem Bucher continued as members of the Board, the youngsters were emerging. Terry O'Neill, '54, was elected President, Peter Holland, '56, Vice-President, John Woschiz, '57, Secretary, and the Councillors were Dave Brophy, '45, Wali Diesing, '66, (now Mrs. O'Reilly), John Fitzpatrick, '61, Norm Flett, '64, and Bob Gaudet, S.J., '54.

On April 8, 1967 the Ontario Alumni held their first full-scale event. It was a cocktail party at the Ontario Club, 16 Wellington Street West. Some one hundred attended the party, a very pleasant social event and a financially successful one.

In subsequent years the Ontario organization has arranged post-game parties, dances, dinners and testimonials. The Ontario Club, Park-Plaza Hotel, Ontario Place, Royal York and The Old Mill have been the scenes of diversified get-togethers. Charles Phelan, Q.C., '48, Bill Wilson Jr., '53, and Bill Pelton, '48, have attended some of these events in the course of their terms as president of the Association. The Director of Alumni Affairs, Bernie McCallum, '43, has missed only one.

The party at The Old Mill, held in honor of Very Rev. T. Moylan, S.J., was the most successful one from many points of view. Former students came from distant points in Canada and the United States to pay homage to "Pop". Fellow Jesuits and acquaintances in the Toronto area were present. All enjoyed the evening.

The 1966 Board, the organizers of so many successful activities over the past seven years, are now being challenged in a subtle manner by the graduates of the late sixties and early seventies. Gone are John Woschiz (back in Montreal), Mrs. Wali O'Reilly (Cockrane, Ontario) and Bob Gaudet (Chaplain at Loyola) and a few of the others. The young people of the fifties and early sixties are now being overtaken by the young people of the late sixties and early seventies. The Toronto Chapter is being revitalized. It is simply a case of numbers. The new Torontonians (most of them former hockey, football and basketball players) are interested in the new Loyola and this was very evident at the reception in the Sheraton Four Seasons after the Toronto Varsity Blues—Loyola Warriors hockey game on Friday, February 9th.

Father Moylan was there looking around for familiar faces. He recognized Bob Sauvé, '56, John McCahey, '55, Ted Rooney, '50, and maybe a few others. Clem Bucher obviously had advance information on the number of young alumni expected—he brought along his daughter. But everyone at the reception was affiliated with Loyola as an alumnus, alumna, administrator, coach, student, teacher or trainer. Rev. C. C. Ryan, S.J. (Acting Director of Development), Paul Arsenault (Hockey Coach), Dave Draper (Former Hockey Coach) and his wife, Charmaine, Russ Blackwell (Athletic Trainer), the College hockey players and one hundred and fifteen alumni were all in the Dufferin Room trading anecdotes.

The entire evening was a good one, save for the hockey result. Toronto won 10-5.
